An Introduction to the Association

Cosmopolitan Housing Association (CHA) was established in 1969 as Liverpool and District Student Housing Association.

The organisation has undergone several name changes, most notably to Young Persons Housing Association, before adopting its present name.

The organisation's specialist roots are well described by the previous names, initially concentrating on the development and management of accommodation for students and young people.

Since its establishment, the organisation has grown organically through a mixture of partnership working and the adoption of a nimble approach.

Its flexibility has been its strength, adapting to the changing environment and obtaining new developments through securing, grant funding and building a reputation for deliverability.

The formation of the Cosmopolitan Housing Group represents the most recent chapter in the organisation's development.

Formed on 1 April 2003, the Group created Sister Companies to Cosmopolitan Housing Association, one for the development of student homes and the other to undertake commercial developments.
